Editorial Policy

We aim to publish news content that reflects the social and cultural diversity in Britain and around the world, and that is produced by people from diverse backgrounds. Our mission is to inform and educate our audiences and to offer perspectives that are sometimes missing from the mainstream news media. As a news publishing and training enterprise we aim to maintain the highest ethical and professional standards of journalism and as such adhere to the Press Complaints Commission Code of Conduct.

Types of Articles Published

News stories: Length should be around 300-500 words and include quotes from valid sources and at least one interview. If you have not had professional training in writing news stories, do not attempt to write one, write a feature or commentary instead.

News Features: Length should be between 700 and 1000 words and must contain proper analysis of your chosen topic including at least two interviews.

Commentaries: Length 700-1000 and should include evidence to support your viewpoint.

Reviews: (books, film, theatre, music, TV & art) Length should be around 500 - 700 words

Submission Guidelines

- Submissions must be an original and unpublished work by the submitting author.
- Articles should be submitted online: <http://peoplewithvoices.com/submit/>
- Alternatively articles can be emailed to: info@peoplewithvoices.com
- Please check your copy thoroughly for spelling and grammatical errors.
- Articles may be edited for house style, legal compliance; or to reduce the length.
- You will still own the copyright to your article.
- There is no monetary compensation for your submission.

Editing of Submissions

You are free to submit an article on a topic of your choice provided that it falls broadly within any of our news categories. However, we will not publish any content that is defamatory, that breaches privacy laws or that is offensive or insensitive to particular groups in society. All submissions are reviewed by the editorial team to maintain legal and ethical compliance.

Guidelines for Writing Fiction Book Reviews

- A review on a work of fiction should be your personal response to your reading experience.
- It is permissible to write in the first person.
- A fiction review should be assessed in the context of the genre to which it belongs – e.g. crime, thriller, science fiction, romance, historical, etc.
- When you summarise the plot don't give away surprise endings or you will spoil the reader's pleasure.
- Comment on the quality of writing – is there anything unique in the prose style?
- When comparing the book with others consider whether it is offering something new or just a variation of an old theme.
- Are the characters realistic, exciting or memorable?
- How well structured is the novel – does it flow seamlessly?
- What are the underlying issues being explored in the novel?

NB. Book reviews are always written in the present tense because a book's contents are felt to be permanent – the text is always there.

Guidelines for Writing Film Reviews

- Give a brief summary of the plot without giving away the ending.
- Consider the genre – what type of film is it – drama, comedy, action, sci-fi etc?
- How does the film compare with others in this genre?
- How good is the script?
- How well directed is the film? Give examples of specific scenes.
- Comment on the performance of the main actor (s)
- Is the length of the film appropriate?
- Are the locations used for the film appropriate?
- If based on a true story is the film a realistic representation?
